

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

The Ford V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip—to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

Overnight Modernization

A graphic demonstration of what can be done with office interiors through modernization is shown here. The top photograph shows a factory office in Flint, Mich., at 5 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, before modernization. The lower photograph shows the same office the following Monday morning. All brick walls have been reinforced, unsightly pipes enclosed and windows attractively encased. Note how conditions have been encased in decorative grille.

"West Point of the Air" Filmed Right On The Spot

Hollywood "joined the army" recently when a large company of stars, featured players and technicians, were sent to Randolph Field, Texas, famous $100,000 air school for scenes in "West Point of the Air," Wallace Beery's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring picture to be shown at the Prince theatre Sunday and Monday.

The regiment of seventy cameramen, director's aides, sound recording experts, and other workers, was the largest number ever sent to a single location by the studio.

TRUCK GROWERS URGED TO PREVENT DISEASES FROM PLANT SEEDBEDS

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

In advising Florida growers to disinfect their plant beds, to prevent the seedlings from being attacked by diseases, Dr. W. B. Tisdale, experiment station plant pathologist, sounds this old, but true, adage.

"Much better results are obtained by employing methods to prevent or delay the first infection than by waiting until disease appears to be a serious problem," Dr. Tisdale says.

Growers are now preparing plant beds for fall vegetable crops and certain annual ornamentals. Strong, healthy seedlings are very important in the success of the crop. Because of the thick stand of plants in the seedbed and their tender condition, diseases can destroy many or all of them in a few days. It is wise to take measures to keep these diseases out of plant beds.

The cost of treating plant beds is relatively high and carelessness in certain operations can make the whole process worthless. When properly done, however, the results will justify the expense.

Chief among the parasites which plant beds will kill are cucumber seedlings are nematodes and fungi which cause damping-off. Other parasites possibly introduced into the beds by seeds. Some of the parasites, notably cucumber beetles, are of great importance in the seedbed, while others may not kill or greatly injure the seedlings, but cause greater damage after the plants have been transplanted.

Whether the seeds to be sown in the house or on larger dimensions outdoors, the soil should be as free of parasites as possible. Dr. Tisdale explains. If means of disinfecting the soil are not available, the best method is to wash the soil from some distance away from fields which have produced similar crops.

Soil for beds may be sterilized by heating it in pressure cookers, the use of a stove, or by formaldehyde fumigation, or by steam. Outdoor beds may be sterilized by steam, "firing," or by formaldehyde fumigation.

Once the soil has been sterilized, precautions should be taken to prevent re-infection. Walking on the beds and flooding them with surface water are the most likely causes of re-infection. Formaldehyde should also be sterilized by red copper oxide, zinc oxide, copper carbamate, or formaldehyde dust, according to the kinds of seed being planted.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

WEEKLY FROM HOME DEMONSTRATION SPECIALISTS, TALLAHASSEE

STORAGE PLACES

While the women are canning and preserving food in various ways the boys or men of the family should be making adequate storage space for storing the canned products. Since the budgetary pantries has been inaugurated and pantries and displayed in the pantries, the men are taking an interest in making convenient and attractive pantries for their wives.

Not only should there be adequate storage for the canned products needed at home, but there should be space for the products should be placed for fair exhibits and for sale or later.

One of the first important steps in good home management is adequate storage space for the storing of conservation products which the women have labored over during hot summer months. Yet, through the housewife's work of canning and often you will find the products scattered all over the house, often in the heat of the sun, part of the day on the porch, or in the hot kitchen.

A good pantry for Florida should have some screened ventilators at top and bottom. It should be insulated on all sides and particularly on the top, or in the roof. A pantry may be built as a lean-to on the kitchen, or it may be built off from the back porch near the kitchen. A basement storage room is good if a stairway goes down from the kitchen. There should also be an outside basement door large enough to store large equipment. What is desirable is a canning room in the basement and a locked storage room located outside.

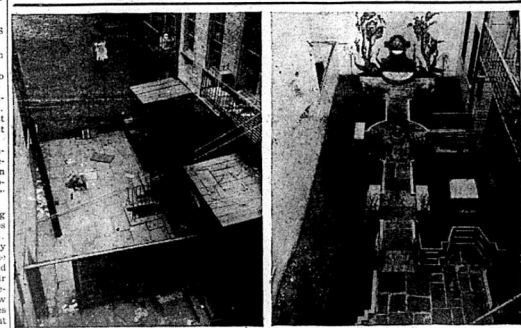

Canning and saving the surplus of money in the pocket. Let's prepare adequate storage for it.

LOANS IN PINELLAS

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Pinellas county growers who have received emergency citrus loans have gone to work with a vim and vigor, fighting and dusting their groves. Growers are looking good now as a result of new citrus loans.

Strawberry growers are preparing land to plant the fall crop, according to a report from William Gomme, county agent.

Beautification Enters the Alley

In scores of congested centers, particularly in large cities, unsightly alleys are an eyesore. In most instances they remain for years in a state of general disrepair, collecting refuse and trash from surrounding dwellings. The two photographs above show how a squalid alley may be transformed into a small courtyard of grace and charm. Careful selection of greenery and flowers, flagstone walks, even a small fountain may be utilized to beautify such space. Pleading effects in color may break the monotony of gray walls. But few outdoor benches attractively arranged add charm to the scene. Such projects may be financed with modernization credit available at any financial institution approved by the Federal Housing Administration.
